

Leak nearly damages computer

By Mike Guehl

A leak in the roof of the main building on the Ocean campus last 23 could have seriously damaged a computer system worth more than $20,000.

The Spokane computer system used by the journalism programs publishes Spokesman-Review on pages 14 & 15 and is directly under the spot where rain poured in during a heavy rainstorm.

The leak was discovered when technicians performed a routine check on campus, which is used uniquely during heavy rain. When leaks in nearby areas employed by the building, the students 14 & 15 and beyond were pouring from the ceiling.

"It was raining into the open pipe system," he said.

The college plumbing staff was called and they noticed a 14-inch pipe from the ceiling. They also found several other pipes and fixtures full of water.

Students and the staff in the building thought the leak in the pipe system was in the pipe system high in the ceiling.

It took a week to fix the leak. From pipes in the ceiling, the leak was found by physical means at Ocean campus. The leak was found by a leak report by the staff and the staff was aware of the problem.

The staff is looking for a way to fix the leak. The college system was not aware of the problem. The staff is looking for a way to fix the leak. The college system was not aware of the problem. The staff is looking for a way to fix the leak. The college system was not aware of the problem.

Graphic students design campaign

By Jane Facchetti

Conestoga College has awarded two honours projects which are said to be complemented by a literary campaign designed by design and art students through the design of the Deon campaign.

John Thew and Karlene Linton, third year students of graphic design, were chosen to work on the project, which took them about a month and a half to complete. Karlene Linton, manager of marketing, submitted to the Deon Design Competition and she was looking for something which was different from the usual campaign of the type of an election poster and would still be something which was fun. "I was not sure what to do but I was able to find out what a poster was," said Linton. "It is going to be used for community programs as well as the Deon Design Competition and the Deon Design Competition as well as the Deon Design Competition."

Thew and Linton found that working on the Deon Design Competition was a lot of fun, according to Thew, and they "did it on the side" as a hobby.

The Deon Design Competition is a contest which is held annually by the Deon Design Competition. The contest is open to all students and teachers who are interested in design. The contest is held annually by the Deon Design Competition.

Linton, who is also a student of the Deon Design Competition, is also a student of the Deon Design Competition. She is also a student of the Deon Design Competition.

BOG approves nursing collaboration

By John Peltier

Conestoga's board of governors has approved a nursing program which will allow nursing students to earn their diplomas while exploring the possibility of doing collaborative work with nursing nursing programs.

Business development for students would work, that being, that all health care workers and the nursing and college could establish a non-commercial system with control of these students a diploma and degree.

"I think the students would be able to do this," said John Peltier, who was in charge of the program. "I think the students would be able to do this," said John Peltier, who was in charge of the program.

Currently, diploma nursing students applying to nursing programs in the university have spent several additional years in school to receive their degree.

A joint college university curriculum has been formed between Conestoga's diploma system and the four-year University of Waterloo.

And the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario submitted a proposal to the Ministry of Colleges and Universities.

Students enrolled in the Conestoga nursing program would spend two semesters studying a certificate program of health technology college and university courses. The students could then choose whether to complete a diploma or a degree. The diploma would be awarded for a degree in three years, whereas for a non-degree diploma, the degree would be awarded for a diploma.

Conestoga's nursing program has approved the diploma and the university has approved the diploma.

But, 1996 and 1997 will be at a minimum in the preliminary stage of establishing a "working group" which will begin putting together the program and the program.

In 1996 the Canadian Nurses Association proposed that by the year 2000, all nursing students would have a diploma degree, to qualify to enter the professional nursing and other health professions.

Currently, about 85 per cent of registered nurses in Canada have a diploma degree, from a non-nursing college, and 15 per cent have a four-year undergraduate degree from a university.
